NICK MIDDLETON
Zen founder

GROUNDING IN ENGINEERING - DRIVEN BY DESIGN

Nick Middleton is descended from a family of world-class engineers who embody a tradition of continuous improvement through innovation that extends back to 1935. He founded Zen Golf Corporation in 1992 while operating in the construction industry. It was here that he conceived the original vision for the indoor golf arena through the application of advanced geodesic structures to create innovative architectural solutions.

As a Millennium Product Award Winner and an accomplished equipment designer, Nick holds numerous patents and innovations in golf equipment and coaching systems, notably the Zen Oracle Putter series created in 1999 - a Golf Digest Hot Product and voted the #1 training system. Stuart Appleby used this breakthrough "direct feedback" technology to become the first tour pro to win three consecutive Mercedes Championships and the fifth player in history to shoot sub-60 in a PGA Tour event.

The Kaizen philosophy embodied in Zen Golf flows into Zen Golf Mechanics, the sports science performance service developed in collaboration with Sheffield Hallam University - an inaugural European Tour Performance Institute advisory panel member.

Nick discovered the difficulty players had transferring their performance to the golf course, and so in 2012 he developed the Zen Green Stage adaptive playing surface technology to create representative practice environments. This venture exemplifies Zen's commitment to enriching golf performance and participation through customer-focused design and world-class innovation.

"In golf, you rarely face a flat putt or simple planar slope. With Zen, I can recreate the exact playing environment — especially compound breaks —

Being able to experience these and accurately measure how, when, and why a player's performance breaks down is so important."

"Without a doubt Zen® has been the best investment I've ever made."

"People always ask me: how can I change the forces from the ground to change the numbers in the swing?"

Dr. Scott Lynn

Biomechanics consultant to players and coaches on the PGA tour.

"Of all the tools I've previously used, nothing changes the numbers like the Zen Swing Stage does in one single shot."

"The way that it can create changes in golf swings, I think, is really special and kind of untapped."

This insight is key to unlocking pure potential on the golf course."

Daniel Gray

Head of Coaching at Lake Nona Golf and Country Club.

Specification: Swing Stage with Swing Catalyst Dual Motion force plates and Trackman 4 plus 16x8ft Green Stage with Science & Motion PuttStudio

"In over 20 years of coaching, I never had the ability to capture data or give feedback on the timing of force out on the course. We just couldn't help golfers with the timing of their movement. But with the combination of Zen Swing Stage and Swing Catalyst, I can now create an environment that truly helps golfers understand and improve the timing of their force."
